Art Unit: 2836

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C.

112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 6 is confusing and it is believed that the confusion arises due to language missing with respect to connections of the third diode.

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

4. Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being clearly anticipated by Nilssen (5,459,375).

See Fig. 13A and Col. 30, lines 50-59.

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negatived by the manner in which the invention was made.

This application currently names joint inventors. In considering patentability of the claims under 35 U.S.C. 103(a), the examiner presumes that the subject matter of the various claims was commonly owned at the time any inventions covered therein were made absent any evidence to the contrary. Applicant is advised of the obligation under 37 CFR 1.56 to point out the inventor and invention dates of each claim that was not commonly owned at the time a later invention was made in order for the examiner to consider the applicability of 35 U.S.C. 103(c) and potential 35 U.S.C. 102(e), (f) or (g) prior art under 35 U.S.C. 103(a).

6. Claims 2-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Nilssen in view of Meitzner et al. (5,986,898).

Nilssen discloses, as above, a rectifier circuit comprising four diodes (RD1-RD4), inductance (APVW) in series with the third pole and a capacitance (HFFC'), but does not appear to disclose the use of two capacitance elements with a junction point as required by Claims 2 and 3. Such configurations would have been obvious as a means to further increase efficiency especially wherein two high speed diodes were being utilized thereby deleting a diode drop. Addressing Claims 4-7, Nilssen discloses the inductance (see Fig. 13) being connected to the third pole, but not that it can be connected to the fourth pole or that the fourth pole is connected to ground, as required by the various claimed combinations found in Claims 4-7. However, Meitzner et al. teach (see Fig. 1) that it is known to utilize bridge rectifier circuits concerned with power factor correction, which incorporate input capacitance, diode bridges and inductance, in other applications from that of Nilssen and wherein the fourth pole is connected to ground. Therefore, it would have been obvious to have the fourth pole connected to ground as a matter of engineering design choice, such as, offering the design to an application, such as, switched-mode power supply with power factor correction, as fairly taught by Meitzner et al., thereby allowing that application to gain in efficiency by power factor correction.
